

WHAT'S INSIDE

movies | 10

Something for everyone, from dark thrillers to fun animations

dining | 19

Check out Santa Fe's Mariscos La Playa for superb seafood

the arts | 16

SITE Santa Fe's "casa tomada" examines dissolving boundaries

on the cover |

Wayne Coyne is frontman of The Flaming Lips rock band, which will close the Taos Vortex Fest.

COURTESY OF GEORGE SALISBURY

Go to ABQJournal.com/venue

Editor

Mark Oswald
992-6269
moswald@abqjournal.com

Reporter

Megan Bennett 992-6265
mbennett@abqjournal.com

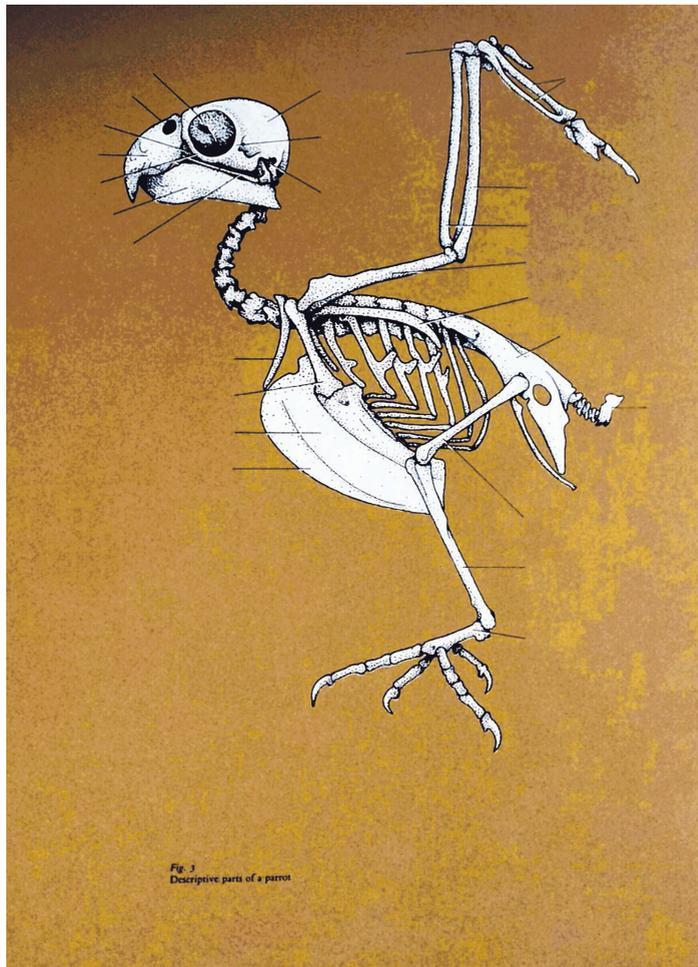

Calendar

Marie Duran
992-6264
mduran@abqjournal.com

Advertising

992-6280

top picks

COURTESY OF AXLE CONTEMPORARY

Print by Jamison Chas Banks

A group exhibition of Native printmakers with the goal of "bringing the gift back into art" is opening tonight in the Railyard.

IMPRINT, organized by curators from the Ralph T. Coe Center, will open in Axle Mobile Contemporary van today at 5 p.m. under the Railyard's shade structure. The exhibit will also be at the Coe Center through March 2019.

The artists — Eliza Naranjo Morse, Jamison Chas Banks, Jason Garcia, Terran Last Gun, Jacob Meders and Dakota Mace — also will stage ongoing, pop-up components of the show to bring art to Santa Fe. According to curator Bess Murphy, these random acts will be announced via social media and will include leaving art to be found in abandoned newspaper boxes, giving out free prints and printing wheat paste, or temporary, posters onto surfaces, including one on the outside of the Axle van. IMPRINT will be traveling around town in the Axle Mobile Gallery until August 26.

The exhibition will have an opening reception at the Coe Center, 1590 B Pacheco St., on August 14 from 5-7 p.m.

RAPPEL RAISER: Watch Santa Feans rappel from one of the town's most famous downtown buildings as part of a Girls Inc. fundraiser kicking off its annual art show.

"Conquer Heights. Empower Girls" is happening Saturday, Aug. 4, at La Fonda on the Plaza, 100 E. San Francisco, from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. A maximum of about 90 participants, who must have raised $1,000 or more via sponsors to benefit Girls Inc., will have the chance to rappel six stories — or 62 feet — off La Fonda's roof. Raising $2,000 gets them a GoPro camera to take with them on the trip down and the top fundraiser will receive a weekend "staycation" at the hotel.

"Conquer Heights" complements the art show Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 4-5, with 170 juried vendors from across the country set up on the Plaza. The show is free.

CLOSING THE PARTY: Taos Pueblo's Grammy Award-winning musician Robert Mirabal will be the last act to grace the Santa Fe Bandstand stage before Meow Wolf's closing party on Friday, Aug. 10. Mirabal won the 2008 Best Native American Music Album Grammy for his "Johnny Whitehorse: Totemic Flute Chants" and also is featured on the 2006 album "Sacred Ground: A Tribute to Mother Earth," which also earned a Grammy. His music can range from rousing rock to traditional Native American sounds. He'll be performing at the Santa Fe Bandstand on the Plaza on Aug. 9, at 7:15 p.m., preceded by a native drum circle starting at 6 p.m. The concert is free.

COURTESY OF SANTA FE BANDSTAND/PHOTO BY JOHNNY LEATHER

Robert Mirabal